This is Sean Whalen (prion).

I think that all of Robert Borski's recent genealogical theories are possible, but I'm slightly worried about Merryn, because Wolfe has said that she is "probably" Severian's sister. Hopefully Wolfe will decide this in the Short Sun books. By the way, an oread is a mountain nymph, not a sea nymph. Other types of Graeco-Roman nymphs, in case anyone wants to know, are:

Okeanids/Oceanids: daughters of Okeanos, nymphs of various water features

Nereids: daughters of Nereus, nymphs of the Mediterranean Sea

Naiads: water nymphs

Dryads: (oak) tree nymphs

Meliai: nymphs of ash trees
