Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

LETTERS HOME is about Gene Wolfe's experience in the Korean War, made up of the letters he wrote to his mother.

BIBLIOMEN is another case of Cheap Street (expensive) versus Bryan Cholfin (not expensive and a few more characters added as well). It is basically a collection of short-shorts, character sketches; "characters in search of a book" ("biblio-men," see?). A few of them have been published in magazines.
