I do not believe that Tzad is remotely connected to the Archangel Michael, in either motive or substance. If he comes off like an angel on the Day of Judgement this is a carefully orchestrated effect, done for the benefit of Sev and his personal, shall we say, demons.

Now wait a sec here. Tzadkiel is not Michael but s/he certainly is an angel, not an archangel like Michael, but a sufficiently great and important being for Urth/Ushas. S/he is the Angel of Divine Justice. (My info comes from Gustav Davidson's -A Dictionary of Angels-, Free Press 1967, which is not one of those idiotic gift-books of angels, but a scholarly work). I don't have the book to hand, so cannot tell you more, but I do have a xerox of the list of the 30 top angels (and the 103 fallen angels).

Angels are supernatural beings. Tzadkeiel (acknowledging that this is fiction) is not a supernatural being.

A scholarly work on supernatural beings?

I contend that F. Murray Abraham is an angel.
