

Applause for Urth essays

The Urth list — 1 messages, 1 voices, 17 Jul 1999

<https://urth.darkrealm.vip/thread/urth/1714>

Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

Michael Andre-Driussi — 17 Jul 1999, 14:06

I usually appreciate the discussion and debate that goes on around here (well, obviously--otherwise I wouldn't be here).

In addition to that, it is very exciting to see fully developed pieces like Mitchell A. Bailey's "The Power Behind the Phoenix Throne" and Roy C. Lackey's recent piece on the flowers of Dorcas. (I'll be seeing Robert Borski's latest "NYRSF" essay when my subscription copy arrives--soon. First it must battle its way through the walls of snail flesh between yon and hither . . .)

There is little reward for such labors (unless you happen to be an academic, at which point you've got the gun to your head <g>). And so I salute Messrs. Lackey and Bailey and applaud their essays.

Yay!

=mantis=