Referring to Ori's recommendation of Mario de Carvalho's book: I strongly second this. A GOD STROLLING is magisterial stuff, and as an account of paganism hovering on the brink of Christianity, it has particular resonances with LONG SUN. Which leads me to a related topic: we've often spoken of GW's affinities with the Robert Graves who wrote I, CLAUDIUS; but what of other classicist historical novels that may have bearing? Compare the narrative voice of Severian with that employed in Marguerite Yourcenar's MEMOIRS OF HADRIAN for a start.

Just to note that there's no need to get uncorrected proofs from eBay. Amazon seems to be regularly shipping ON BLUE'S WATERS now. My order was mailed today.
