Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

...but I don't have the details yet. Everything should be pretty much the same, except with a different email address for contributions, and slightly different commands for subscribing and unsubscribing.

As long as we're moving: do we still need two separate lists, or would it make more sense just to have one? I've asked before and never done anything about it. This time... well, we'll see. We have perhaps a few days left to decide.

I should be able to move your subscriptions over to the new lists, so you won't have to resubscribe. Let me know if, for some reason, you'd rather not subscribe to the new lists.
