Here's a list of Wolfe stories (though I can't guarantee that they're all stories, since I haven't seen most of them!) which aren't found in any of his collections, including Bibliomen, Young Wolfe, For Rosemary, and Plan(e)t Engineering:

----much snipping ensues----

* Joe and Me, Locus 45, July 2000.

Locus issue #474, (vol. 45 No. 1). This is a moving remembrance of SF artist Joe Mayhew, and is available online: <http://www.locusmag.com/2000/Issues/07/WolfeOnMayhew.html>

* Kid Sister, Dancing with the Dark, ed. Stephen Jones, Vista, 1997

Also published in the US by Carroll & Graf, 1999.

The Locus index lists this as biographical. Dancing with the Dark is described as an "anthology of memoirs, subtitled 'TRUE encounters with the paranormal by masters of the macabre'." Does anyone know any more about this piece?

From that obit:

Thousands of fans have seen his cartoons, but I suspect that only a few have seen his wood carvings. Perhaps the most remarkable is a cane decorated with leaves and feathers and stars, and the faces of 11 different men. The inscription at the bottom reads, "December 1993/This osage orange walking stick was made for Gene R. Wolfe by Joe Mayhew." Someday I may let you touch it. But only if you're very, very good.

I wonder if Wolfe can make any of the faces talk?
