vizcacha,

Thanks for the note on "Green Room"--I knew of it because the same (no doubt derived from the theatrical tradition) is used at conventions (informal pre-panel prep room for panel participants), but I still wonder as to the etymology or historical reasons as to how and why. (Does anybody know?)

What we have so far certainly deserves mention in "Additions, Errata, &cetera: volume 3," as well as all the other tidbits slated and a huge amount about Kardashev Type I, Type II, and Type III (levels of interstellar civilization); the 20th century science (and subsequent science fiction) regarding a possibly already dying sun; the text points of TBOTNS suggesting a black hole in the Sun (this lack in the LEXICON is shocking); terraforming timelines, stellaforming, and other relevant notes from Fogg's TERRAFORMING, and so on.

Will there be room for the article on "ProtoS" (the proto-Severian)? Probably not, but we shall see.

Green Book. Green Room. Green Man.

Can someone remind me where the Green Room is found in the BONS?

Are there other green things?

The Severian Quintet needs to be scanned into Word or Wordperfect, so we can search for themes like this.

I've thought the same thing. It would be a great help for we BotNS scholars. Too bad it would grossly violate copyright law <g>.
