CRCulver (on the Black Beans):

This story seems, in my opinion, to show the planting of the black hole in the Old Sun.

Nice idea, but see below:

Who is this woman?

Evidently a space traveller with access to alien lifeforms - not unlike a female Hethor. I think that's all we know about her.

I would like to know the etymology of 'Nessus' and what relation it has to poison.

Nessus the centaur was killed by Hercules. His ingenious revenge, as he lay dying, was to get Hercules' wife to treat a shirt with his blood, which was the most caustic poison imaginable. When Hercules put on the shirt it burned like fire and couldn't be removed.
