In response to my query about the medicinal use of arsenic, Josh Geller wrote...

The use of arsenic to cure syphilis was discovered by Dr. Paul Ehrlich I think around 1900 or maybe a little before. The treatment remained the standard treatment until the invention of penicillin.

Thanks, Josh! I thought I remembered something like that, but didn't know where to check it out.

So...Do we know if arsenic would also be effective against "Yaws"?

I believe so. The organism is the same, or very similar.
