Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

Would you guys please stop masturbating on the list?

And what is causing this epidemic of including an entire previous message, complete with Yahoo advertising, just to add a 1-line (top-posted) comment?

Correction. Lurkers only have a say in what goes on in the list if they speak up about something they like or don't like - people aren't going to read your minds. So, anyone's well within their rights to speak up and make such a request; I just don't think they have a "right" to be indignant, and/or rude about it.
