The producers of the film version of "The Death of Dr Island" have recently updated their website (<http://www.doctorisland.com/>).

Postproduction continues but they clearly need some more money in order to finish the project. In order to raise this, they're offering various sponsorship packages, most of which involve buying/sponsoring frames from the movie.

I've bought a frame and thought others on the Urth List might also be interested in supporting this film. If you've not already seen it, the website is well worth a look, though those browsing it at work need to note that the characters in the story are entirely naked and that's what the stills from the movie show.
