

New Wolfe Audiobooks

The Urth list — 3 messages, 3 voices, 17 Jan 2010

<https://urth.darkrealm.vip/thread/urth/5537>

Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

aaron — 17 Jan 2010, 13:03

Just wanted to let everyone know that Audible.com has all four New Sun Books (with the exception of Urth of the New Sun, that is) in audio format. They were just released in early December and are read by a guy named John Davis. The words seem to be pronounced correctly this time and the reading overall is really good. High quality audio as well. Check them out.

Aaron Singleton

Fred Kiesche — 17 Jan 2010, 13:19 · in reply to aaron

Sigh. Audible--big fat downloads. Which doesn't work for those of us still on dial-up. Dang.

On 1/17/10, aaron <aaronsingleton at gmail.com> wrote:

Just wanted to let everyone know that Audible.com has all four New Sun Books (with the exception of Urth of the New Sun, that is) in audio format. They were just released in early December and are read by a guy named John Davis. The words seem to be pronounced correctly this time and the reading overall is really good. High quality audio as well. Check them out.

--

Aaron Singleton

F.P. Kiesche III "Ah Mr. Gibbon, another damned, fat, square book. Always, scribble, scribble, eh?" (The Duke of Gloucester, on being presented with Volume 2 of The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.) Blogging at The Lensman's Children.

sonofwitz at butcherbaker.org — 19 Jan 2010, 18:42 · in reply to Fred Kiesche

I hate to say it, but this narrator pales in comparison with the American Library for the Blind's narrator, Roy Avers. I've been so excited for a version that doesn't have all sorts of background noise, but listening to the sample at Audible, I'm disappointed. This guy makes it all sound so flat and wooden. too bad. ~Witz

Sigh. Audible--big fat downloads. Which doesn't work for those of us still on dial-up. Dang.

On 1/17/10, aaron <aaronsingleton at gmail.com> wrote:

Just wanted to let everyone know that Audible.com has all four New Sun Books

(with the exception of Urth of the New Sun, that is) in audio format.

They

were just released in early December and are read by a guy named John Davis. The words seem to be pronounced correctly this time and the reading overall is really good. High quality audio as well. Check them out.

--

Aaron Singleton

--

F.P. Kiesche III "Ah Mr. Gibbon, another damned, fat, square book. Always, scribble, scribble, scribble, eh?" (The Duke of Gloucester, on being presented with Volume 2 of The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.) Blogging at The Lensman's Children.
