

(no subject)

The Urth list — 2 messages, 2 voices, 15 Dec 2010

<https://urth.darkrealm.vip/thread/urth/5822>

Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

Lee Berman — 15 Dec 2010, 12:14

Lee Berman- But The Green Man is a significant alternate name for the pagan horned god, Great God Pan, etc. Is Wolfe suggesting this is the ultimate and true, unified god of Briah?

Matthew Weber- I really can't see how the text is suggesting such a thing any more than it's suggesting that Jonas is the ultimate and true, unified god of Briah. Happy to reconsider if I'm missing something, of course.

What I mean is that after the massive plot contortions and planetary upheavals, at the end of the story on Ushas we are not left with much of anything that suggests a Christian outcome. No monotheism, no Savior.

Instead we have 4 gods derived from human sources, two male, two female, two light, two dark. Plus a demon in the ocean. And a pagan symbol (Green Man) as the marker for this particular future.

Son of Witz — 15 Dec 2010, 19:35 · in reply to Lee Berman

On Dec 15, 2010, at 4:14 AM, Lee Berman <severiansola at hotmail.com> wrote:

Lee Berman- But The Green Man is a significant alternate name for the pagan horned god, Great God Pan,
etc. Is Wolfe suggesting this is the ultimate and true, unified god of Briah?

Matthew Weber- I really can't see how the text is suggesting such a thing any more than it's suggesting that Jonas is the ultimate and true, unified god of Briah. Happy to reconsider if I'm missing something,
of course.

What I mean is that after the massive plot contortions and planetary upheavals, at the end of the story on Ushas we are not left with much of anything that suggests a Christian outcome. No monotheism, no Savior.

Instead we have 4 gods derived from human sources, two male, two female, two light, two dark. Plus a demon in the ocean. And a pagan symbol (Green Man) as the marker for this particular future.

The map is not the territory. The inhabitants' cosmology is a map. It may not accurately reflect their world.