

(no subject)

The Urth list — 2 messages, 2 voices, 14 Jan 2011

<https://urth.darkrealm.vip/thread/urth/5900>

Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

Lee Berman — 14 Jan 2011, 18:10

David Stockhoff: Briefly, "The sacrificial/sacral/divine king has an obligation to sacrifice himself for the good of his people and the land. The maimed/Fisher king is a danger to his people as he might cause the kingdom to become a wasteland."

Ah, thanks for the extra info! Maimed King is related to Fisher King- Arthurian and related to the Holy Grail, (which certainly has an element of chastity and sexual purity associated with it).

As one who is quite interested in Fomalhaut and the many fish/mouth/caves to be found in BotNS and Long/Short Sun, I am definitely going to perk up a bit when fish and fishing are mentioned.

I'm thinking about the Autarch in Dr. Talos' Play. He hopes to stop the New Sun or at least stop the new Creation which will populate it. Goaded by the demon, he orders his space ships to lay the Urth sere, to burn the "seed" (Meschia/Meschiane) which the demons failed to poison this time, this Creation.

Thus he is the anti-New Sun hoping to bathe the world in fire instead of water. I am thinking that a Flood is much more of a fertility symbol to ancient Middle East types, so influenced by Egyptian and Nile-based culture, than it might first appear to us.

(just some amorphous thoughts...no particular GUT here to unify things)

Riffing on the Pringles theme again, surely someone has commented, over the years, on the possible connection of creating billions of identical potato chips to an obsession with cloning. (I can remember when Pringles first came out when I was a kid. They were a pretty weird concept (in appearance, in packaging and in taste)

DAVID STOCKHOFF — 14 Jan 2011, 19:47 · in reply to Lee Berman

--- On Fri, 1/14/11, Lee Berman <severiansola at hotmail.com> wrote:
I'm thinking about the Autarch in Dr. Talos' Play. He hopes to stop the New Sun or at least stop the new Creation which will populate it. Goaded by the demon, he orders his space ships to lay the Urth sere, to burn the "seed" (Meschia/Meschiane) which the demons failed to poison this time, this Creation.

Thus he is the anti-New Sun hoping to bathe the world in fire instead of water. I am thinking that a Flood is much more of a fertility symbol to ancient Middle East types, so influenced by Egyptian and Nile-based culture, than it might first appear to us.

Interestingly, both are possibly related to fertility---but the irrigation cultures handed down more of our mythical material than did the slash-and-burn cultures. So I agree there: better to drown and cover the world in green than to burn in satanic sterility.