Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

A biography is hard work: who will fund the years of work for a really good one? How would one convince Wolfe to cooperate and that one isn't a flake?

Anyone who needs some emails on a mailing list to motivate them probably shouldn't be doing it in the first place.

Absolutely. I was hoping to hear about some of you Wolfe scholars having something like this in the works. Or examples of other bios of speculative fiction writers that would be worth emulating (or at least reading). Questions a biography of Wolfe would answer. Reasons it should be written. Discussion.

Funding? Who funds Borski's books of essays?
