Several recent newstories about Groening's new series include a cartoon self-portrait of Groening in his studio with a bookcase behind him "...The animation pioneer noted that he is a stickler for details, so many of the books have a title on their spine..." Now, is the volume in the shelf above "Hothouse" or "Penthouse?"

When faced with two alternatives, I always like to choose the fourth.

Not sure if you're punning, but here's the list:

Top shelf (titles partially obscured):

Wn

One

Write

House

Warning

Ulu

Middle:

Gene Wolfe

The Big Sky

Rationale of the Dirty Joke

No Laughing Matter

Dave Barry

Donald Duck

Salinger

1001 Ways to Beat the Draft

R Crumb

It Can't Happen Here

Cruddy

Bottom:

1984

Nanc? Sluggo

Henry A. Shute

The books over to our right (writer's left!) do not have any titles.

His shelves seem to be mostly comedy, so Wolfe is one of the few from other genres.
