Ok, all this discussion of the black hole/white fountain has made me realize that, although I thought I understood, I still don't get it.

Urth's sun is dying for some reason. Severian goes to get a White Fountain, but brings it back to a different universe, to Ushas, whose sun is, as far as I know, doing just fine. How does this action help either Urth or Ushas?

I imagine I'm missing something obvious that re-reading Urth or the archives might answer, but would someone mind explaining it one more time?

Ushas is Urth post-White Fountain. The White Fountain is the new sun of the same universe that Urth was in.

I asked:

So Ushas and Urth are in the same universe? Ushas is simply Urth some years later when the newly restored sun has melted the ice? Somehow I thought it was more complicated than that.
