Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

I don't mean to be overly fussy, but could people please double check the date their computers are set to before they post to this list?

I keep my email sorted by date. If a new message arrives that is dated over a year in the past, it is likely to be scrolled out of my email window and I'll never see it unless someone replies to it.
