I am one of IZ's assistant editors - have been for 20 years. Slushpile reader, really. I am just aa fan. IZ is a shoestring thing, all dags and tatters.

That's interesting Andy. I've been a faithful reader since around Issue 50, many years ago. Always an interesting magazine, sometimes very good indeed. How did you get involved - do you live in the Brighton area? Were you already a friend of David Pringle? Huw NB I was just thinking about the many stories I've read in the mag over the years - I guess my favourites (well the ones that immediately spring to mind) are 'A Crab Must Try' by Barrington Bayley and 'Cities' (I believe that was the title) by Storm Constantine.

Local fan, basically

NB I was just thinking about the many stories I've read in the mag over the years - I guess my favourites (well the ones that immediately spring to mind) are 'A Crab Must Try' by Barrington Bayley and 'Cities' (I believe that was the title) by Storm Constantine.

Well you will have an opportunity to read something by little me in the january issue. "The Eater" - my first published story.
