Exported from an unofficial mirror of a public mailing list. Copyright in each message remains with the person who wrote it. Email addresses are obscured as `user at host`, the form the original archive published. This file was rebuilt from parsed fields rather than retained headers, so it is faithful in content but not byte-exact.

Also, I don't remember anyone commenting on the passage in III, p17, in which Quetzal removes a powder puff from a drawer across the room, without leaving his chair. So does he have a chair with wheels, or telekinesis, that's what I want to know.

I always assumed that, being a highly flexible shape-changer, Quetzal simply stretched his arm (neck?) until he could reach.
